103rd ANNUAL REPORT

In this, our Annual Report for the year 1937, it is the purpose of the Board of Managers

To review the events and problems of the past year and the prospects for the future;

To inform our contributors as to how we invest their money in behalf of merchant seamen;

To bring before people who do not know us a glimpse of what the Institute is and does:

And, above all, for our own benefit, to appraise with what degree of success we have been fulfilling the purpose of the Institute as stated in our Constitution: "caring for the moral and spiritual and the mental and bodily welfare of seamen and boatmen, and using all means in its power to better the conditions surrounding and affecting them, and to be helpful to them in every way possible."

The SEAMEN'S CHURCH INSTITUTE OF NEW YORK is the only non-commercial enterprise on South Street, and one of only a half dozen or so on the entire waterfront of New York. It is a place where a seaman may buy at moderate rates lodging and food, and receive values and benefits available only because of the help of our loyal contributors. Other services are available to the seaman at low cost because of our highly co-ordinated organization and the efficient use of our funds. A multitude of further services accrue for which we do not charge—entertainment, vocational training, our Library, our clinics, and the safeguarding of money. Here at the Institute the seaman receives all that is implied by the term "social service."

Our thirteen floors and three basements house a veritable "city within four walls" to fulfill our opportunity and responsibility to the seaman. Some of our activities, described in detail in previous years, are graphically portrayed in the "X-ray" chart on Pages 12 and 13.

Many things attendant on these departments of our work cannot be so portrayed: the large and constant business of scrubbing and polishing and keeping the building "ship-shape"—up to hospital standards of cleanliness; the receiving and distributing of supplies, the constant repairs and replacements, the maintenance of order through our tactful and well-trained attendants and other activities calling for the personal skill, cooperation and devotion of our employees, the results of whose work can better be seen than charted.

THE PAST YEAR

What defined and characterized the year 1937? As we single out in our minds the important events, we find that in each of them it is the seaman himself who has been paramount. He is, as it were, the "theme-song" of this Report. For among the year's outstanding characteristics have been three: the trend toward continuous employment and shorter time ashore for the seaman; the change in relief conditions; and labor's internecine struggle.

In regard to the first, which is a trend of the past several years, it has been some time now since the seaman stayed on shore for a matter of weeks between voyages. The liners and freighters, and particularly the tankers, stay a far shorter time in port than formerly, often only a matter of hours. These quick "turn-arounds" of ships are due to the use of oil as fuel, to improved methods of handling cargo, and today's pressure for haste. Seamen often remain on their ships while in port, with leisure time after five o'clock to go ashore in search of recreation, their mail, etc. This tendency must be emphasized if one is properly to understand changing shipping conditions in relation to the seaman and the Institute.

For the seaman this has resulted in a need for prompt and efficient services of every conceivable kind. The Institute, well equipped to do so, has geared itself to the ever-increasing tempo, providing the answer to the seaman's necessities, such as hurry-up calls for mail, baggage, clothing, etc. We all know the benefits of home and its aid to stability of character. The seaman wants and needs a home when on shore. Such stability must be encouraged within a short period by new methods and more personal service on our part.

Relief

The Institute has played its part in relief since the beginning of the depression, both under our own program and in conjunction with the Government. The latter program ended in 1935, and the Institute has continued to carry its own credit system whereby seamen may borrow money for food, clothing, lodging, carfare to jobs and other essentials entirely apart from relief or breadlines. The typical seaman, as you who follow our affairs at 25 South Street know, is self-reliant, innately self-supporting, displaying qualities of character which serve him in good stead when hard times would make others give up in despair. The trend away from straight relief accords not only with our own desire but with the sincere wish of the seaman himself. As a shore worker might be able to borrow in emergencies from friends or even from a bank, so the seaman may borrow from the Institute. By prompt re-payment he maintains his credit standing, and many seamen settle up as soon as paid off on their next ship job.

Seamen's Problems

The most important thing which we can say about the labor troubles of the waterfront is that we have done our utmost to maintain a neutral position and to concentrate on our one objective—to serve all seamen to the best of our ability. Consequently, it has not been and is not our part to take sides in their political or union programs, but it is our business, through Christian character building, to help them to see life clearly, to be fair and sportsmanlike, to be loyal to that which is proper, and to make their own right decisions.

During the year the building has been appreciated by thousands of seamen. Attendance at our Chapel services has been greater than ever. And the seamen's contacts with our staff, from the Baggage Room attendants to our Chaplains, from the News Stand to our Welfare Department, have developed friendships and a social spirit which are truly inspiring.

Shipboard Visiting

In 1937, furthermore, shipboard visiting was resumed, a practice which was customary for the Institute up to the post-war period. Two members of our staff are now engaged in visiting all American ships which come into this port, and also many of the foreign ships. Each year new men go to sea who have never visited the Institute, and many older seamen, strangers to this port, need information about our services and activities. Our shipboard visitors are now reaching these men, supplying magazines, stationery, books, games, wallets for sea papers, and other items to the crews, helping them to deposit their wages, and rendering many other personal services.

These characteristics of 1937, all of which have to do with the seaman as a man, project themselves into the future as our problems, but our aspirations and needs are touched on elsewhere in this Report. However, before concluding our description of the past year, we shall mention several innovations and events.

Innovations

The Information Desk near the front door is mentioned first, because it is seen first when a seaman enters the building. Closed in 1933 for lack of funds, it was reopened as a necessity and our friendly door men are serving a real need, answering innumerable questions about New York, bus and train and steamship information and such other personal inquiries as do not need to be referred to the Welfare Department.

A special "Mother's Room" on the mezzanine floor given in memory of a Mother, was built and furnished, and is used as a reception and sitting room for seamen's mothers, wives and other women relatives. This room, which fills a genuine need, the seamen greatly appreciate.

The Merchant Marine School under the direction of Captain Robert Huntington has trained over 20,000 boys and men as seamen since it was opened in 1916. The need for expansion and additional equipment was recognized by the Board but because of lack of funds nothing could be done until, in 1937, through the will of Mr. Charles Hayden, a member of the Board of Managers until his death (in January, 1937) provision was made for a Foundation especially to assist youth. The trustees, in appreciation of the general program of the Institute, particularly in the sea-training of young Americans, allocated the sum of $25,000. This makes possible the expansion of our School, provides scholarship aid to seamen desiring to improve their sea-rating, the purchase of much-needed equipment and affords opportunities for a larger enrollment with consequent benefit to seamen and the ultimate improvement of the American Merchant Marine. Our School occupies the part of the thirteenth floor of our building which was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Whitehouse, in memory of their son, Meredyth. We deeply regret to report that, just before going to press, we learned of the death of Mr. Whitehouse, who had been an Honorary Member of the Board of Managers since 1917.

Further Events

Other events of 1937 included three benefits: a lecture by Captain Alan Villiers, a performance of Mr. Maxwell Anderson's play, "The Star-Wagon", and a fashion show by Harper Fraser-Campbell at the Hotel Weylin. The Institute was host to two shipwrecked crews: the Newfoundland fishing schooner "Pauline E. Lohnes" which was sunk by a steamer during a fog off the Grand Banks, the crew being brought to "25 South Street" for food, shelter and clothing. Also the British freighter "Sandgate Castle" caught fire in mid-Atlantic and twenty-nine seamen and ten officers were quartered at the Institute for three days until the British consul sent them home to England. Such hospitality is, in part, made possible by the venerable Blue Anchor Society to aid victims of shipwrecks, a unit now of the Central Council.

Central Council

We have had the support of the Central Council of Associations of the Seamen's Church Institute of New York, comprising more than twenty groups of women residing in or near New York. Besides the money which they raise annually, we have received from them knitted articles, clothing, books, linens, a sun-lamp for the Clinic, and a portable Public Address system for our lobbies and the auditorium. The interest and moral support of these groups are highly valued and have been of great assistance.

Seamen's Children

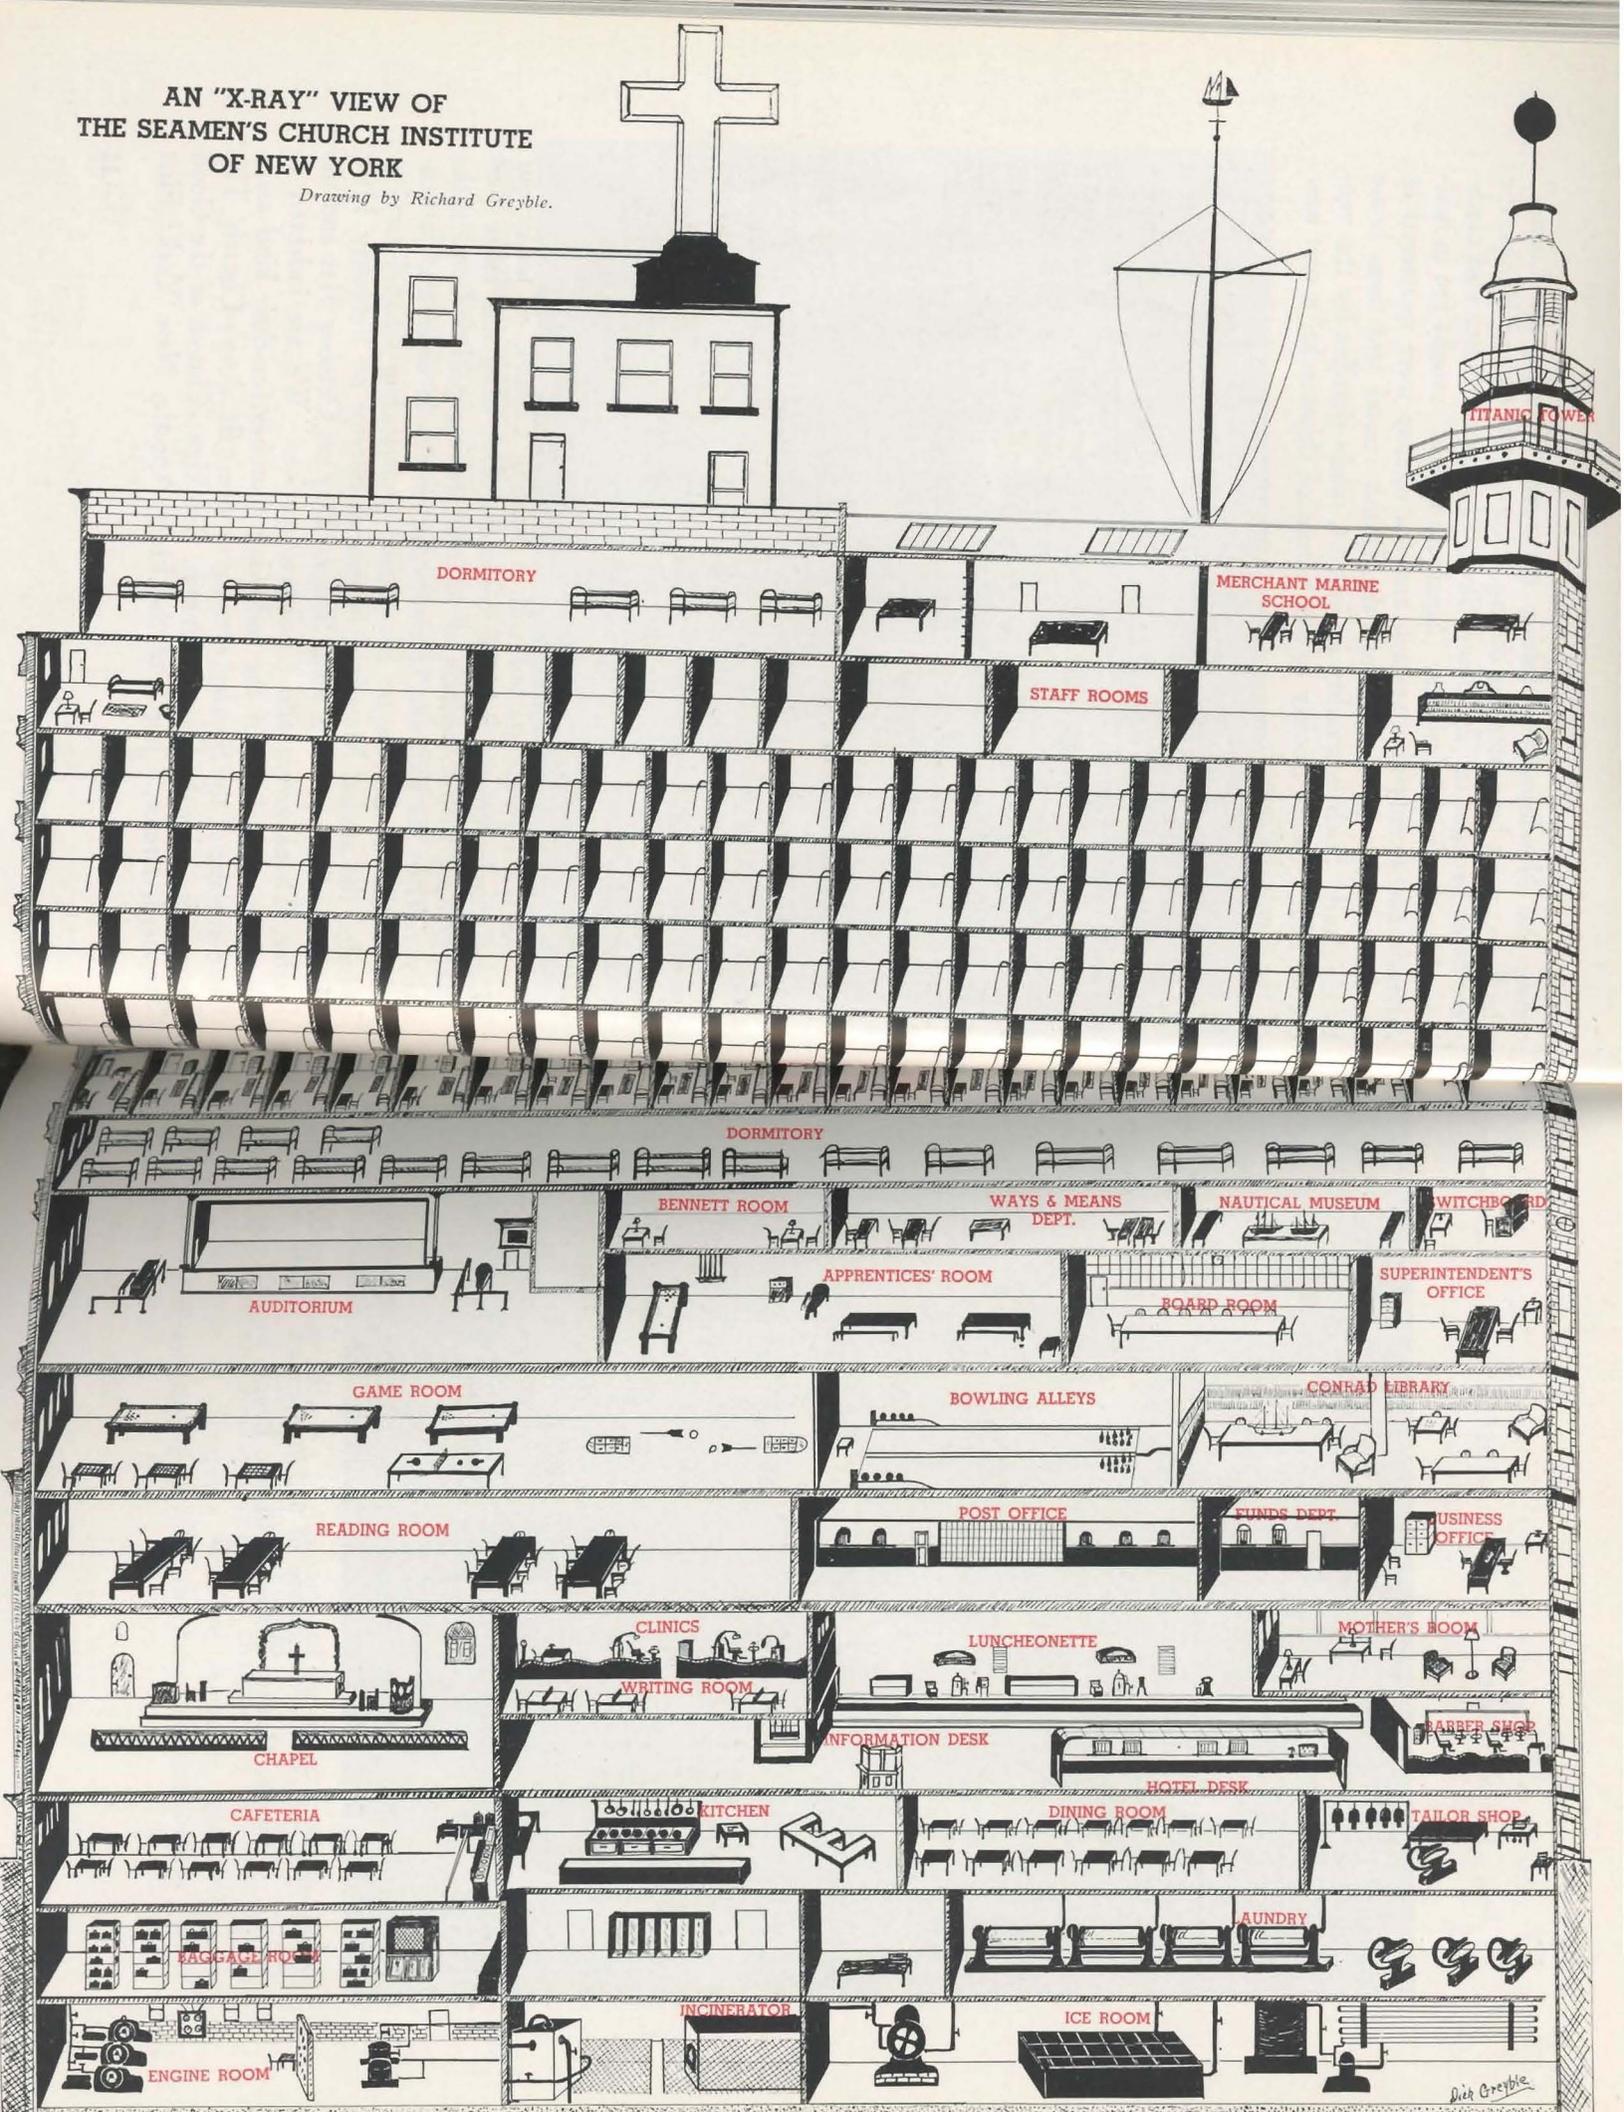

In 1937 the Society for Seamen's Children, a 91-year old organization on Staten Island, became affiliated with the Institute through the Central Council. The Institute has for many years turned to this Society for cooperation when needing homes for children of seamen, and the new relation is a natural and a happy result.

Chapel Services

As the Institute started with a floating Chapel, so today our Chapel carries on our spiritual tradition. Our chaplains make personal contact with thousands of seamen seeking guidance and make daily visits to the sick and convalescent seamen in hospitals, particularly in the U. S. Marine Hospitals. Outstanding Chapel services included the annual Mansfield Memorial Service on February 11th, Memorial Day on May 30th, Sailors' Day on October 31st and the Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas services. We are indebted to the clergy and choirs of the following churches for their kind assistance at some of the Sunday evening services: St. Ann's Church, The Bronx; St. John the Baptist Church, Brooklyn; Church of the Good Shepherd, Bronx; Church of the Holy Apostle, New York; First Methodist Church, Brooklyn; Calvary Church, New York; The Sailors' Snug Harbor Memorial Church, Staten Island; and St. Simon's Church, Staten Island.

In Appreciation

We wish that we could thank by name all our friends. However, we do wish to mention and thank some because of unique and particular cooperation and counsel; on maritime matters: Messrs. Charles Robert Patterson, Gordon Grant, William McFee and Christopher Morley, Dr. Hendrik Willem van Loon, Captain "Bob" Bartlett, Captain Alan Villiers, Captain Felix Riesenber; Mr. Ira Hand for his generous donation of exhibit space at the Motor Boat Show at Grand Central Palace; Miss Carla Dietz of the United States Lines, Mr. Harry Davisson of the Cunard-White Star Line, Mr. Robert French of the Grace Line and Miss Elsie Jansen of "Tramp Trips", for their always kind and ready assistance in giving information and lending photographs for THE LOOKOUT.

FINANCIAL

The financial summaries, both as to income and principal, appearing on page 20 of this Report, speak for themselves. Our program for the seamen was continued despite the resultant deficit, for the needs of the port required this. In the face of this difficulty we have managed to maintain the same high standards which have always been the noteworthy characteristic of our institution. Through benefits and through mail appeals and other efforts of the Ways and Means Department we have raised funds required to supplement our building earnings and special income.

Pier Collections

We have had, furthermore, a share (with eight other seamen's welfare agencies) in the pier collections from visitors to steamships. Since our Annual Meeting in January we regret to have to record the death of Mr. Charles Sherman Haight, a Vice-President of our Board of Managers, who served also as chairman of the Joint Emergency Committee of Seamen's Welfare Agencies, and who was instrumental in inaugurating in 1933 the dime collections from visitors at sailings of ships.

Our Needs

Upon the making of new friends and the continued loyal response of our present ones depends our success in giving to the seaman the home he so well deserves. We need besides gifts for current use, additions to our Endowment Fund. Our Committee on Trust Funds (see Report on Page 21) has ably handled our portfolio of securities. Friends are invited to consider the merits of the Institute when choosing beneficiaries of their estates. A suggested legacy form is printed on the back cover of this Report. All bequests are exempt from New York State and Federal Estate taxes. We also suggest Memorials. (See Page 24 for list of Memorials now available.)

The Sailors' Snug Harbor

Since many people confuse the Seamen's Church Institute of New York with The Sailors' Snug Harbor, we would like to point out that the two organizations are in no way connected, although they frequently cooperate. The "Harbor" is an endowed home on Staten Island where about 800 old mariners ("aged, decrepit and out-worn seamen" in accordance with Captain Randall's will) spend their declining years in comfort and peace. It is the "Harbor" which derives its income from rentals of property near Washington Square, Manhattan. The Institute, on the other hand, only partially endowed, is maintained exclusively for active merchant seamen.

In Conclusion

We wish to thank our contributors and our staff, who together make possible the welcome we are able to extend to all seamen, a welcome symbolized at night by the thirty-five foot illuminated Cross which caps our structure, and the green light in our Titanic Memorial Tower; and by day the Stars and Stripes flying from the gaff of the ship's mast on our roof.

Y., indicating the approximate number of guests who will visit the gardens with you.

Mr. Scheepers' estate, "Paradou", is located on Northern Boulevard (25A) at Brookville, Long Island, and Mr. Salvage's estate, "Rynwood", is also at Brookville, only a short distance away.

Skyward and Seaward Shine the S. C. I. Lights.

LEGACIES TO THE INSTITUTE

You are asked to remember this Institute in your will, that it may properly carry on its important work for seamen. While it is advisable to consult your lawyer as to the drawing of your will, we submit nevertheless the following as a clause that may be used:

I give and bequeath to “Seamen’s Church Institute of New York,” incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, located at 25 South Street, New York City, the sum of.....
.....Dollars.

Note that the words “OF NEW YORK” are a part of our title.

It is to the generosity of numerous donors and testators that the Institute owes its present position, and for their benefactions their memory will ever be cherished by all friends of the seaman.
