TOGETHER WITH THE

MISSIONARIES' AND TREASURERS' REPORTS.

NEW YORK:
STAFFORD, CANDEE & CO.

1861.

FORM OF BEQUEST.

I give and bequeath to "The Protestant Episcopal Church Missionary Society for Seamen in the City and Port of New York," incorporated by the Legislature of the State of New York in the year One Thousand Eight Hundred and Forty-four, the sum of Dollars, for the purposes of said Society.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE SOCIETY.

THE ANNUAL MEETING was held on Easter Monday, April 1, 1861, at which the Reports of the Board of Managers, Missionaries, Treasurer and Superintendent of the "New Sailors' Home" were presented, and the Officers and Managers of the Society for the ensuing year were chosen.

THE SEVENTEENTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MISSION was celebrated at Calvary Church, on Sunday evening, April 21, 1861. Evening Prayer was said by the Rev. Robert J. Walker, "Missionary at Large to Seamen;" the Lesson being read by the Rev. Henry F. Roberts, Missionary in charge of the "Church of the Holy Comforter." The sermon was preached by the Rev. John Cotton Smith, Rector of the Church of the Ascension, N. Y., and a collection made in aid of the funds of the Mission.

The Rev. Francis L. Hawk, D.D., L.L.D., Rector of Calvary Church, presided upon the occasion, and, by request, read the Annual Report of the Board of Managers.

PRAYER FOR SEAMEN.

O God, the Creator of heaven and earth, who hath promised that the abundance of the sea shall be converted unto Thee, we beseech Thee to have mercy upon all those whose business is upon the mighty waters; and amidst the dangers to which they are exposed, and the temptations to forget Thee and Thy Holy Word, to neglect Thy Sabbaths and Thy ordinances, by which they are surrounded, may Thy Holy Spirit admonish, direct and lead them into a knowledge of Thy Truth and an obedience to Thy Commandments. Be pleased to bless the efforts which, in accordance with Thy will, Thy people make for their salvation. Especially grant Thy blessing upon the Word of Truth ministered to them, whether on land or on the water; and gather them from all their wanderings into Thy blessed fold, to be partakers of Thine eternal glory, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ANOTHER year in the annals of the CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY FOR SEAMEN, in this City and Port, has passed away, and we have come to mark its seventeenth anniversary, and record our gratitude to Almighty God, for the many and blessed tokens of His favor. Never have the Board of Managers felt more inclined to pause, and signalize their obligations, and encouragements, or "to make mention of the loving kindnesses of the Lord," than now. Their special work has prospered in the midst of troublous times. Possibly, the fact of its being an humble and unostentatious work, has shielded it from the force of that storm which has swept the land, and overtaken many larger enterprises of good—even as at sea, the hurricane pours its desolating fury upon vessels of the largest class, while smaller ones escape; but, from whatever favoring cause, we have been enabled to hold on our way, and to rejoice in the assurance that neither the smile of God, or the sympathies of our fellow Christians, were diverted from our mission to the sailor. Our meetings, agencies, and general operations, have been kept in full play, without the loss of heart or hope, and with abounding incentives never to "let the work cease." It ought not to cease. It ought not to flag. It ought not to intermit a pulse. The sailor, and every cause which appertains to his allotment, may well claim exemption from those political or financial disorders, which, like earthquakes, shake the land, and interrupt its prosperity, and darken its hopes. Whoever else may suffer amidst the distractions of the Republic, the sailor ought not to suffer. Efforts to promote his welfare, temporal or spiritual, ought in no way to decline. Whoever else may be driven and tossed, whoever else may be stranded and wrecked in the disturbance or chaos of national affairs, the sailor, at least, coming into port, should find a snug harbor, and a secure provision for his humble wants. His own element dooms him to privation and disaster. Every voyage he makes is full of hazard. Panic and convulsion make up his ordinary life, and when he comes ashore, it should not be to encounter evils greater and more terrible than those he has left behind; it should not be to a frozen welcome; or to a declining interest in his soul's good. Nay, rather the reverse. For months he has been uncared for, and tossed about; he has had his full share of "hard times," and if, upon leaving the fore-castle for a few days, he wants sympathy, or religious counsel, or a home, or a pastor's affectionate interest, or a Chapel which he may resort to, and call his own, or any other benefit which may solace or elevate him, he should have them at all times, and in the face of all circumstances. The Managers, therefore, have not for an instant indulged in misgivings as to the future of this noble Mission, or the sustaining help and sympathy of the Church at large. On the contrary, they have been, more than ever, impressed with the solemnity of their trust—with its vast importance—with its infinite bearings—and instead of meditating loss, or retrenchment, their very hearts have yearned to lift the collective Church in this City to a higher level of duty and responsibility in this matter. Instead of curtailment, they can bear witness to the urgent need of fresh life, and more comprehensive action, and if anything dampens their satisfaction to night, it is that their Report conveys so inadequately the full measure and proportion of the good accomplished, and the actual work in hand. The Managers listen to a monthly recital of what the Missionaries have done. They hear in detail, what if heard by the whole Church, would set it on fire with zeal and interest. They hear that which converts each business meeting into a "solemn assembly." First, from their devoted Missionaries, and then from Committees of Sunday Visitation, they receive current facts, incidents, observations, something as follows:—

The two Chapels, one on the East River, the other on the North, (represented by their respective Pastors,) have been engaged in a steady and painstaking effort to bless seafaring men. Each Lord's day, these Chapels on opposite sides of the Island, have sounded an invitation for every sailor on ship or shore to come and join in holy worship, and hear the comfortable Gospel, and cast their burden upon the Lord. The invitation is thankfully accepted. The congregation, always fluctuating, is generally full. Some have just arrived; some are just going to sea; but all are attentive and solemnized; for the sailor, if a spark of religious feeling be left, has too little of Church-going ever to grow weary of it. In a multitude of cases it is "like cold waters to a thirsty soul." There is such a difference between the holy calm of the Chapel sanctuary, and the noisy profane uproar of the deck—between the tones of the preacher urging him to lay hold upon eternal life, and the tones of the superior ordering him to the masthead—that his better nature is awakened and interested. Both service and sermon stir his manhood, by appealing to his immortality, so that many a sailor who came with no personal concern, is softened, and lingers behind after benediction, to speak a word with the Minister, or ask for a Tract. Here is one whose memories of home and youth have been revived by hearing the morning or evening prayer. There is one moved by the petitions put up for a person going to sea, or by the thanksgiving for a safe return. Yonder is a weather-beaten tar who has a story to tell about his last voyage, the comfort he found in his Bible, and his attempts to interest his shipmates in the great salvation. And there, in the opposite aisle, is an intelligent, attractive young man, who, touched to the quick by the earnest sermon, is convinced that to the sailor, of all other men, "one thing is needful," and waits for words of counsel. Scarcely a Sunday has passed during the month without some soul being bowed by the power of the Holy Ghost, or some fresh instance ascertained of good seed sown at previous services. A letter is placed in the Missionary's hand, dated at sea, recounting God's continued mercy to some poor sinner who had found light and peace at the Chapel; or a verbal message, brought by one sailor from another, assures the Pastor that his labor has not been in vain. Instances of this kind are as touching as they are frequent and cheering.

Besides these interesting narratives from the Missionaries in charge of the Chapels, your Board of Managers listen with equal, and often with higher satisfaction, to the Monthly Statement of the Missionary at Large. Every Sunday morning, and evening, he may be found at Coenties Slip, performing Divine Service, and preaching in the open air, upon a barge, or on the dock, imitating the Master upon the shores of Galilee and Gennesaret. His congregation varies according to the weather, but is usually large, and notably devout. No sight could be more impressive. Hundreds of men suddenly brought together—composed of all nations and tongues—standing reverently during service, hanging upon the lips of the preacher, and uniting in full chorus when the familiar hymn is given—form a group of exceeding interest. Who can measure the effect of such services upon these chance worshippers? Who shall know this side the day of Judgment what lasting impressions have been made by the singing of a single hymn, or the pressing home of a pungent Gospel truth?

Near this out door Station in Coenties Slip, there is a so-called Mission room, to which all are invited who are inclined to receive good books, or to prolong the religious exercises of the day by listening to brief and effective addresses from the Missionary, or from Members of the Visitation Committee. These informal services, at the close, frequently glow with animation, and are known to be productive of great good ; but the Managers must again remind the Church how shockingly inadequate the Mission room is to our purposes and needs—an ordinary Shipping Office during the week a small inconvenient Sanctuary on the Lord's day!

It will not be supposed that the labors of our Missionaries terminate with the regular duties of Sunday. They never terminate, but are spread through all days alike. At different centres in the city, evening services are held during the week. Sailors apparently interested are followed up and conversed with. The Homes and Hospitals are visited, and every occasion of doing good to seafarers eagerly improved, while the Chapel Pastors have their respective flocks to visit, including the wives, or widows and children of seamen, stevedores, and others of this class. Among all these a constant distribution of Bibles, Prayer Books, and Testaments is going on, together with a great variety of other reading matter calculated to arrest the eye and affect the heart of the sailor.

For full particulars of the work accomplished at the different stations during the past year, we would refer to the accompanying reports of the Missionaries. A brief outline is as follows :

The congregations at the chapels have shown a gratifying increase.

In fair weather the number of worshippers at Coenties Slip has reached 150 and 200, a large proportion being seamen.

At the three stations the aggregate number of baptisms has been 34, burials 18.

The average number partaking of the monthly Communion at the chapel is about 30.

There have been distributed at the different stations during the past year 268 Bibles, 1,713 Testaments, 443 Prayer Books, besides 4,206 books of a religious character adapted to the wants and tastes of seamen ; also a large number of tracts.

For much of this reading matter the Society has been indebted to the liberality of the P. E. Bible and Prayer Book Society, the P. E. Tract Society, the Society for the Promotion of Religion and Learning, the Evangelical Knowledge Society, the New York Bible Society, the American Tract Society, and to several private donors.

Conspicuous among the features of this most important Mission, is The Home, or Sailors' Boarding House. The benefits of this receptacle cannot be over-estimated. Without it, the power of religious effort among seamen would be fearfully crippled. Its shelter, security, neatness, order, its wholesome influence, always favorable to temperance, soberness and honesty make it a grand auxiliary in promoting all the high and spiritual objects of this Mission. It is a Home where the helpless sailor is sheltered from wrong and robbery, and where at a very moderate cost he may find all that sympathy and comfort which he looks for in this rough world.

At the date of our last Report there were 21 seamen at the Home, 784 have entered since, making a total of 805 boarders during the past year.

The superintendent has received from these boarders the sum of $7,600, which money has either been sent home to the families of the seamen or been deposited in the Savings Banks.

In concluding their Report, the Board of Managers advert with unfeigned sorrow to the demise of one of their associates during the past year. It is no ordinary bond which unites us in true fellowship and affection. The interest felt in the Mission, and quickened at each monthly meeting creates a personal tie among the members of the Board. The cause is a focal point of unity and esteem. Faces become familiar, and voices pleasant, until the circle, almost like that of home, is clothed with a quick and special regard, so that when death invades it, we mourn, we miss the absent. The brother who has left us was ready to depart, and by the comforting assurances of his last hours we have every reason to believe that he has entered upon that "rest which remaineth for the people of God." But being dead, he yet speaketh, and by his withdrawal, we who remain, are emboldened to press upon you with great earnestness the work which he can no longer promote. Our appeal to the Church should be emphatic and solemn, for we are persuaded by the benefits and developments which attend this Mission from Sunday to Sunday and from month to month, that it would be impossible to overstate its importance. It is a wise scheme of benevolence directed toward a most neglected and yet most interesting class—and, withal, it is managed with scrupulous economy, by practical men. The entire outlay of money during the past year, notwithstanding an unusually large item of nearly $1,000, for repairs on one of the Chapels, amounts to the comparatively small sum of $8,241.20. This, it will be remembered, covers all that is done for the sailor in this port by our communion. The amount is scanty. It is insufficient. Were it quadrupled it would even then scarcely satisfy the needs or deserts of the Mission. The Managers grieve continually that they are straitened, while the work demands enlargement. They perceive where its efficiency might be increased and its results for good greatly multiplied. Among other things, the conviction has been gaining force among them that a commodious and inviting Chapel erected on shore would conduce very much to the influence of the Mission, as it certainly would to the satisfaction of seafaring men. That policy may safely be questioned, which would confine the sailor exclusively to the vicinity of his ship, or to a floating Chapel, when he seeks the comforts of religion; and were the means at their disposal the Board of Managers would gladly provide what appears to be an absolute want in this respect. They look to the Church, therefore, for a larger measure of encouragement and aid. They hold up the cause entrusted to them as one of exceeding interest. They would place it in the forefront of the Missionary enterprise. Mr. Layard, a member of the British Parliament, in addressing a public meeting recently, remarked, with great feeling, that if they had seen as he had, the evil effects which the bad habits and wicked conduct of seamen when in foreign ports, had upon the population, they would see the necessity of instilling into the minds of such as followed that occupation, the truths of Christianity. He hesitated not to say that the bad conduct and vicious habits of one British sailor in the islands of the Pacific and elsewhere, did more to vitiate the minds of the population than the teaching of all the missionaries did to improve them.

The Board of Managers believe this to be true. They believe that the conversion of the sailor stands in a close relation to the conversion of the world.

REPORT OF THE MISSIONARY AT LARGE.

Divine Service has been celebrated twice on each Lord's day throughout the year at Coenties Slip, with the same regularity as in a Church edifice. The prayers have been said and the sermon has been preached almost invariably in the open air. It has been only in extremely severe weather that the Missionary and his hearers have sought shelter in the adjoining room. On pleasant days the congregation has frequently numbered 150 or 200 persons, a large proportion being seamen, or others who gain their livelihood on the rivers or canals of the interior. The great attention and the orderly and devout demeanor of the persons who assemble at this station, have often elicited the grateful surprise of the Visitors of the Board, and of other gentlemen who occasionally favor us with their presence. Within the last twelve months a great number of seafaring men and boatmen have been seriously impressed through the instrumentality of this Mission, whilst some have given decided evidence of a change of heart and life.

Every Sunday afternoon, at the conclusion of the second service, the room No. 31 Coenties Slip has been filled with men eager to receive the Word of God, or some religious book, to carry with them to their ships or barges. Sixty, eighty, and even a hundred boatmen and sailors have sought admittance at the same time.

"The New Sailors' home," in Franklin Square, has occupied much of the Missionary's time and solicitude. He has visited it almost daily, holding familiar intercourse with the inmates, endeavoring to benefit them both for this world and the next. The Service and Lecture on Wednesday evenings have been sustained throughout the year by the Missionary of the North River Chapel or the Missionary at Large. These meetings for prayer and praise have been well attended and productive of much good. The Spirit of the Lord has often vouchsafed His presence, blessing both the sower and the seed.

The Home for Colored Seamen in Vandewater Street has also claimed the attention of the Missionary. This is a very interesting part of his field of labor, and nowhere are his services more gratefully accepted. On some occasions, while officiating at this house, a deep religious feeling has pervaded the entire assemblage.

The sick and dying seamen have been sought out and visited in the different hospitals. It would occupy the pages of a volume to relate all of interest that has occurred in the Missionary's intercourse with these poor sufferers, most of them natives of other lands. He can only state that through the goodness of God he has been enabled to impart consolation to many sorrowful souls, and to direct them to "the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world."

The statistics of the station for the year are as follows: Infant Baptisms, 5; Marriages, 1; Burials, 2. There have been distributed 18 Bibles, 663 Testaments in various languages, 318 Prayer Books, 2,109 Miscellaneous volumes, about 70,000 pages of Tracts, and some 50,000 religious papers and magazines.

REPORT OF THE MISSIONARY

IN CHARGE OF THE

FLOATING CHURCH OF OUR SAVIOUR.

I HAVE to acknowledge with gratitude to God, the continuance of His blessing on my labors.

The number of seamen who have heard the Gospel at our Sunday and week services during the past year cannot have been less than three thousand. As these men are generally on shore but a few days at a time, and but two or three Sundays in the year, it is impossible to judge correctly of results. The seed cast on such a passing stream probably bears much fruit that will never appear until the final harvest. But whatever may be the amount of direct results, it is not by these that the usefulness of our work is to be measured. The converted seaman generally becomes, in his turn, an instrument of great spiritual blessing to many others of his class.

The case of a mate of a vessel who was solemnly awakened by what he heard and witnessed on a Communion Sunday in our Church in December, and was next heard of in March as acting the part of a missionary in his vessel, assembling his crew every morning and evening for prayers, and reading sermons to them on Sundays—is one of many examples that might be given as illustrating that indirect influence at sea and in foreign ports, by which our Mission is carrying the Word of Life to thousands.

The distribution of books and tracts during the past year has amounted to about 100 Bibles, 800 Testaments, 1,000 bound volumes, and 12,000 pages of Tracts.

The Parochial statistics are as follows: Baptisms, adult, 1; Infant, 16; Marriages, 5; Burials, 4; Voluntary Offerings in Charity Boxes (collections in church are not solicited,) for books, $49.62; for the poor, $71.80. Candidates are expected for Confirmation and Communion on their return from sea.

The present condition and prospects of our Mission demand renewed gratitude and zeal. It is to be hoped that as its importance becomes better known by the Church, the means will be afforded for enlarging its operations.

B. S. HUNTINGTON.

REPORT OF THE MISSIONARY

CHURCH OF THE HOLY COMFORTER.

THE Missionary in charge of the Church of the Holy Comforter, in his first annual report finds himself unable to announce any very large results from the labors of the year. He has been enabled, under the good providence of God, to discharge all the duties of the Mission without interruption from sickness or other causes, and there have been some encouraging indications that his labors have not been entirely in vain.

Divine service has been held in the Chapel on the morning and afternoon of each Lord's day, on the mornings of Christmas and Ash Wednesday, and the Chapel has been open for prayers and a short lecture on each of the Wednesday mornings during the season of Lent, which have been attended by a large proportion of the regular congregation.

In connection with the Missionary at Large your Missionary has sustained the regular weekly lectures at the "New Sailors' Home," and at the "Home for Colored Seamen."

He has also sustained a regular weekly lecture on Friday evenings among the families attending the Chapel, alternating from house to house, by which a deep interest has been excited in the work of the Mission, which will doubtless be productive of much good.

A Sunday School has also been established and superintended entirely by the Missionary, who catechises the children publicly every Sunday, either on the catechism of the Church, or upon some portion of the services of the day. The school is still small, and from the nature of surrounding circumstances it must necessarily remain so; but it furnishes a means of religious instruction to the children of the neighboring barges which they would not be likely to seek or enjoy elsewhere, and also tends to keep the children of the congregation together, and causes them to grow up under feelings of interest for the work of the Mission, and we know not but that some future champion of the cause may be raised up through its instrumentality.

The Missionary has also made it a part of his duty to visit weekly the vessels in the vicinity of the Chapel, and to distribute tracts and cards of invitation to our services. Among these vessels are the Liverpool, Galway, and Havre lines of steamers, whose numerous crews furnish a large field for this kind of labor. A large number of river and coasting vessels are also constantly arriving, and it is often gratifying and encouraging to find the utmost willingness on the part of their crews to receive the tracts and advice of the Missionary, whom they appear to regard as one of their truest friends. He has distributed on board of these vessels about 30,000 pages of tracts, and has thus been brought in contact with from 8,000 to 10,000 persons, giving to each at least a word of invitation, while with some he has held a more lengthy conversation on the great subject of salvation through the blood of Christ.

The attendance at the Chapel since the first of May last has been, according to estimate, 8,313, giving an average of 88 persons at each service. Of these 2,363 have been seamen and boatmen, making an average of 25, or nearly one third of the whole. 674 seamen and boatmen have remained behind the congregation to receive books and tracts, making an average of 14 for each day; and among these have been distributed 150 Bibles, 250 Testaments, 125 Prayer Books, 1,097 volumes of miscellaneous books, and a large number of tracts, papers, and magazines. There has been collected towards the purchase of these books, in the box placed at the door for that purpose, $24.42.

For the poor there has been received the following sums: Communion offerings, $48.13; contributions in the box at the door, $40.54; and donations from three members of the Board, of $28.50; making in all $117.17, from which about 500 applicants have been relieved.

There have been 12 Baptisms, one being an adult; 12 Funerals; 6 Marriages; 3 persons Confirmed; and an average of 31 persons partaking of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.
